

ADAM ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT SOFTWARE FOR CONSULTANTS

The ADAM System was developed for use by Consultants to completely automate their data collection and report preparation process for asbestos, lead-based paint, indoor air quality and mold surveys and assessment reports.

The ADAM System helps Consultants enhance their profits, service and productivity in many ways. The ADAM System will help your company:

1. Expand your current services to existing clients and win new projects.

The ADAM System can open more prospect doors and distinguish your firm from the competition and enable your firm to provide your clients with a more efficient, technologically advanced approach to completing their surveys.

2. Automate your report preparation process and enhance employee efficiency.

The ADAM System makes data collection and report preparation a snap. The system increases productivity and enhances profits. This is accomplished by:

- ✓ Eliminating the need to prepare a report on a word processor. Simply click in the survey data and ADAM prepares reports automatically.
- ✓ Reducing the time required to complete quality assurance and control on reports because much of the text comes from standard drop down menus and key entry items are checked at the time of data entry.
- ✓ Enabling you to easily update information, which appears on several tables. Change it in one location and the edit follows through all related tables, summaries and statistics.
- ✓ Enabling you to import your lab results electronically, rather than re-keying all the details for each sample.

3. Provide your clients with faster, more efficient service.

By reducing report preparation time from hours or days to minutes, the report bottleneck is eliminated. Once the survey data is collected, usually on Tablet PC's in the field, the system prepares a comprehensive report with three separate tables of findings and your customized report text with the click-of-a-mouse.

4. Increase your chances of winning survey projects

By reducing time, you can be more competitive on bids. You can also sell clients on the added advantage of storing and updating their data electronically and either providing them with an ADAM System to manage their data or using ADAM to manage their data for them.

5. Secure and lock in your existing client base.

The ADAM System enables you to offer continual data management services. Once you have your customer's data on file in electronic format, you can be of more use to them in the future as changes occur at their facility.

The ADAM Web Companion enables you to provide your clients with on-line access to their data. There is no better way to obtain repeat business from existing clients. The more "value" your firm and its management systems provide to clients, the more likely it is that they will call on you in the future.

ADAM is currently used by 16 environmental consulting firms nationwide with tremendous success. Call us today at 1-800-223-0609 or visit our web site at www.ecologicsystems.com and arrange for your own personal on line demonstration.